GREENSBORO TELEGRAM.

VOL. VII. NO. 145. GREENSBORO, N. C., TUESDAY, JANUARY 22, 1901. Price Five Cents

Luncheon by the Ladies.

If you will take luncheon with the ladies of St. Barnabas' church Thursday any time after noon, in the new stores opposite the City Hall, you will not only be served daintily and sumptuously, but under the auspices of the very best housekeepers and most efficient cooks.

* * *

The ladies have made arrangements for the freshest oysters direct from Norfolk, and birds direct from the country.

* * *

The social features of these bazaars and restaurants has even been in evidence. Gracious matrons and pretty girls always bring out our gallant men.

Literary Meeting Last Night.

The literary meeeting of the West Market Epworth League held last night was largely attended, and the well rendered program was enjoyed by all who heard it. Among the many excellent features was a quartette by Misses Lola Carraway, Nan Wood, Messrs. R. M. Crawford and A. H. Alderman; a solo by Miss Lucy Glenn, one by Miss Minnie Jameson, of the State Normal College, and a violin solo by Miss Minnie Lyon.

The meeting was a success in every respect and gave evidence of careful preparation on the part of those who had the program in charge.

Epworth League Service.

The Centenary Epworth League services last night were very enjoyable. After the prayer and scripture lesson a beautiful quartette was sung by Misses Montgomery and Love and Messrs. Jones and Phillips. The subject for consideration was St. Paul. Mr. T. A. Glaseock spoke of him as a man, and Mr. John W. Lewis discussed his letters. Miss Carrie McNairy read a paper on the persecutions of the Christians during Nero's reign. Miss Sallie Love and Mr. Joe Phillips sang a duet.

Battle Ground Articles.

Mr. W. I. Underwood, who is the Greensboro correspondent of a large number of outside papers, and is one of the most accurate and reliable correspondents in the State, has a specially prepared and well written article in the Atlanta Journal on the Guilford Battle Ground. This is a subject on which articles are always in order, which the large papers publish eagerly. The Washington Post of Sunday published an article by Major Joseph M. Morehead.

To Conduct a Funeral.

Rev. S. B. Turrentine went to Winston this morning to conduct the funeral over the remains of Mr. Lambe, who died in that city yesterday morning. The funeral occured this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mr. Lambe was a young man of much promise and was a consistent member of Centenary Methoist church. He was a brother of Mr. Chas. Lambe formerly connected with The Telegram.

To Attend Missionary Conference.

Mr. C. H. Ireland went to Hickory last night to attend the Mid-year Missionary Conference of the W. N. C. Conference which convenes there today. The Conference will be in session two days. A very interesting program has been arranged, including which is an address by Rev. P. L. Cobb, of Nashville, Tenn.

Has Appendicitis.

Mr. Edney Ridge came home from school at Oak Ridge last night with an attack of appendicitis. He has been troubled with this disease before, having had a several week's seige of it last summer.

Southern Express Co. Moving.

The Southern Express Company has vacated the building recently purchased by Mr. John Coble on South Elm street, and is now installed in the McAdoo building under the telephone exchange.

Burlington Messenger: Mrs. R. J. Marks, accompanied by Master Robert J. Jr., returned to her home in Greensboro, after spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. J. W. Flanigan, in this place,

THE QUEEN IS DEAD.

PASSED AWAY THIS AFTERNOON

THE END CAME PAINLESSLY AS ONE FALLING ASLEEP.

Surrounded by the Royal Family and Ministers—Recognized All Before Noon at a Farewell Interview—William is No Doubt King by Now.

By Wire to The Telegram.

London, Jan. 22.—The Queen passed away painlessly like one falling asleep. She was surrouned by the Royal family, Emperor William of Germany, and members of the cabinet.

Died at 5:10.

New York, Jan. 22.—The New York Journal says the Queen died at 5:10. The stock exchange ticker says that it is officially reported that the Queen is dead. At 4:30 a London special said that she was gradually sinking and that the end was momentarily expected.

Prayers Read.

Cowes, Jan. 22.—The Bishop of Winchester read prayers at her dying majesty's bed chamber at 11:30, midnight. The Queen showed some improvement. The rally was slight, but at daybreak she began to sink. At 8 a. m. the following bulletin was issued: "The Queen shows signs of diminishing strength, her condition assumes more serious aspect."

Arrangements for the New King.

London, Jan. 22—Arrangements are already partially complete for the meeting of the privy council and parliament, the statutes providing that they shall assemble immediately after the death of the sovereign. The privy councillors could gather together within a few hours. The ministers will attend to give up seals of the office and be resworn and receive the proclamation of the new king, and pass a vote of condolence and congratulations and adjourn.

Last Interview Before Noon.

East Cowes, Jan. 22.—At one this afternoon, the queen has been the same since the early morning relapse and is now quite peaceful. At noon the official bulletin says she had recognized all the members of the family here. They were brought to the bedside at 10 o'clock for the last interview. The Queen fell asleep before noon. It was thought likely she never would become conscious again.

Sinking Rapidly at 11:30.

London, Jan. 22.—The ministers had not left London at 11 this mornmorning, but a special train remained in readiness to convey them to Portsmouth enroute to Osborne. The Duchess of York left for Osborne at 1:45 this afternoon. Sir Arthur Biggs, the Queen's private secretary, sent the following at 11:30: "The Queen is sinking rapidly."

The Prince's Bulletin.

London, Jan. 22.—The following bulletin was posted at the Mansion House at 4:33: "Osborne, 4 p.m. My painful duty obliges me to inform you that the life of our beloved Queen is in greatest danger. ALBERT EDWARD."

Advocate the Reformatory.

Yesterday afternoon the Senate and House Committees on Penal institutions held a joint meeting in Raleigh to hear the advocates of a reformatory. Mrs. Mary E. Cartland, of this city, president of the W. C. T. U., presented the petition for that body, and made a speech. The Post says the reformatory will likely be established.

Notice.

There will be a meeting of the stockholders of the Central Carolina Fair Association in the Greensboro National Bank on Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

J. VAN LINDLEY, Pres.
F. N. TAYLOR, Ass't Sec'y.

Death of a U. N. C. Student.

Special to The Telegram.

Chapel Hill, Jan. 22.—Mr. Ira Newton Shaw, a freshman of the University, from Bladen county, died this morning of pneumonia.

Death of Mrs. Harrison.

Mrs. Mary L. Harrison died last night at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. E. Allen, on West Market street. She had long been an invalid, but bore her sufferings with Christian fortitude. All that loving hearts and skillful hands could do to alleviate her pain and restore her health was done, but the hand of Providence had been laid upon her, and without a struggle, but peacefully as a little child falls asleep in its mother's arms, her soul returned to the God who gave it.

Mrs. Harrison was the widow of Rev. T. Harrison, a Baptist minister, who at one time served the Baptist church at this place. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. W. E. Allen and Miss Maie Harrison, and one son, Mr. W. E. Harrison, of Rockingham county. Mrs. Harrison was a sister of Mr. W. R. Land, Mrs. S. S. Brown, and Mr. E. P. Land, of this city. She was 59 years of age, and a native of Rockingham.

The funeral will occur from the residence of Mr. W. E. Allen on West Market street tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, and the remains will be interred in Greene Hill cemetery. Rev. Mr. Johnson and Dr. Smith will conduct the service.

A Sudden Death.

Mr. Robert Hester died very suddenly at the Poor Farm last night. He was not an inmate of the Farm but was a brother-in-law of Mr. A. S. Voss, the keeper. He had been complaining for several days but nothing so serious as death was anticipated.

Last night after eating supper he sat down before the fire, and almost immediately his head fell to one side and he was heard to make a slight moan as if in pain. He was picked up and laid upon a bed but had breathed his last. Heart trouble is supposed to have been the cause of his death.

His native home was near Kernersville, and the remains will be taken there tomorrow for interment.

The Author Club.

The Progressive Author Club met Monday afternoon with Miss Bessie Grissom. Those present were: Misses Louise Bradshaw, Anne Glenn, Lena Lee, Orie Lee, Pauline Pretzfelder, Lillian Adams, Lizzie Montgomery, Nell Nelson, Margaret Merrimon, Dot Thacker, Bonnie Bishop, Bessie Grissom, Mamie Walker.

Miss Dot Thacker won the first prize, which was a very dainty cup and saucer. Miss Orie Lee won the booby, which was a monkey. Delightful refreshments were served, and the afternoon most enjoyably spent.

Wants it Covered With Gold.

Of all the esteemed citizens who talk of our new City Hall, Mr. C. M. Vanstory has took a step ahead. He, like a great many more, is proud of it. His suggestion is that the dome should be covered with copper inlaid with gold, like that of the Congressional Library building. While the dome may never be set off as Mr. Vanstory suggests, the front view of the Hall is going to be very pretty—if the trees are cut down.

Hinshaw Will Stands.

In the will case which has occupied the attention of the court for four days, Coble against Tucker, contesting the will of Nancy A. Hinshaw, the jury this morning brought in a verdict finding all issues in favor of the propounders. Maj. Chas. M. Stedman and Mr. A. M. Scales appeared for the propounders and Messrs. J. G. Bynum and L. M. Scott for the caveators.

Fire at Elizabeth City.

A large fire occurred at Elizabeth City early Sunday morning, destroying over $100,000 of property. The Southern Stock Mutual and Underwriters of this city lost a small amount by the fire.

SIMMONS IS SENATOR

REPUBLICANS FOR PEARSON.

HE GOT TWENTY-ONE VOTES IN BOTH HOUSES.

A Member Had the Cheek to Nominate Marion Butler Who Got No Votes—Fight Over the Curry Resolution in the House.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, Jan. 22.—A bill was introduced in the Senate by Henderson to make a North Carolina exhibit at the Pan-American Exposition.

At noon the election of United States Senators occurred.

N. B. Broughton, of Wake, nominated Hon. F. M. Simmons.

H. A. Foucsee, and Warren, of Jones, made speeches seconding the nomination.

Pinnix nominated Richmond Pearson, who was seconded by Dula.

Senator Miller asked that the Populists be excused from voting, but afterwards changed his mind and voted for Pearson.

The ballot was Simmons 35; Pearson 3.

In the House.

At noon the House went into the election of Senator.

Representative White nominated Simmons. Gattis seconded the nomination.

Benbow nominated Pearson, and Blyth seconded the nomination.

Duncan of Sampson, nominated Marion Butler.

Butler got no votes. Simmons received 88 and Pearson 18.

A bill was introduced to impose a graduated tax on railway earnings.

Also a bill providing home rule for North Carolina cities.

There was a lot of discussion over the resolution inviting Dr. J. L. M. Curry, the well known educator and treasurer of the Peabody Fund, to address the Legislature.

The debate was participated in by Craige and Curtis of Buncombe, who charged Dr. Curry with having lobbied to unseat Congressman Crawford and seat Richmond Pearson.

The discussion became political. Whitaker of Forsyth, made a motion to table the resolution. This motion was lost by a vote of 13 to 85.

Mr. Huntington at Guilford.

Mr. G. C. Huntington, Secretary of the Charlotte Y. M. C. A., came up today for the purpose of conducting a week's meeting at Guilford College.

Girl Catches a Bunco Man.

New York Sun.

William Miller, who refused to tell where he lived, gave Louisa, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Adolph Rittenbucsher, a dry goods merchant at 2027 Third avenue, a two-dollar bill last night for a five-cent spool of thread. When she handed the change to him he said he had a five-cent piece to pay with and got the bill back. Then keeping the change the girl had given him as well he ran out of the store. Louisa chased him for five blocks and caught him in a hallway. He fought, but she held him, shouting "Thief" until a policeman appeared. The swindler was locked up.

Garters Second Choice.

Concord Standard.

Call the writer a crank if you choose but he'd rather to have been in Charlotte today and, among the old scars that wore the gray, have had Mrs. Stonewall Jackson to pin on him one of those bronze medals of honor than to have had knighthood and all the Garters that Queen Victoria has to attach to those she delights to honor.

Start With 14 Children.

Winston Journal.

A marriage license was issued today for O. E. Grubbs, and Mrs. Lucy Crews both of Old Town. Both are 40 years old. The former is a widower with eight children and the latter is a widow with six children. So they start out with fourteen children.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. O. B. Barnes, of Liberty, spent today in the city.

Mr. W. B. Allen spent yesterday in Winston on business.

Mrs. C. W. Hunt, of Charlotee, is visiting friends in the city.

Mrs. Sam Saddler, of Hyde county, is visiting relatives in the city.

Mr. Ernest Holt returned last night from a trip in the eastern part of the State.

Mr. P. R. Albright, of Raleigh, spent the day in Greensboro with his mother.

Mr. Lee Cartland returned to High Point last night after spending a few days with friends in the city.

Dr. T. T. Watkins, of Walnut Cove, spent a short while in the city today on his way to Raleigh on business.

Mrs. Jonathan Newlin, of Indiana, spent last night in the city the guest of Mr. C. C. Townsend, on her way to Randleman.

Judge William E. Uhl, of Monticello, Ind., is visiting his sister Mrs. Clarence R. Brown, on West Washington street.

Will They Marrify?

Fayetteville Observer.

Mr. N. A. McLean, aged 22, and Miss Annie Henderson, aged 17, both of Gray's Creek, obtained marriage license today.

ARCTIC EXPLORERS.

Efforts Made to Find Those Who Are Lost.

It was announced recently that the duke of the Abruzzi would return to Franz Joseph Land next spring in the hope that he might succeed in rescuing the three men from his expedition who were lost during his recent sojourn in that far northern land. In the brief report of his discoveries, and of the remarkable sledge journey of one of his parties which attained the highest latitude ever reached, nothing was said of the great misfortune which befell the expedition. The facts have been made known only since the expedition returned to Italy. It will be remembered that the first sledge party which the duke sent north from his vessel, the Stella Polare, when she was frozen in the ice in latitude 81 degrees 55 minutes, was a failure, owing to the frightful cold, the temperature falling to 52 degrees Celsius. It was late in February when this expedition returned to the ship. On March 11 a fresh attempt was made. Ten men and many dogs started northward. After ten days' march Lieut. Gaurini, of the Italian navy, the Norwegian machinist Stocken, and the Italian Alpine guide Ulie, declined to go any further, and were sent back to the ship with the sledge and ten dogs, says the New York Sun.

They never returned to the ship and no trace of them could be found. All the other members of the party, with the ship's doctor as leader, advanced for 20 days to beyond the eighty-third parallel and returned safe and sound to the ship. It was the third expedition that later made the highest northing.

Searching expeditions were sent out for the lost men, but all in vain. Two depots of supplies were left for them at places which it was thought they might reach if they were alive. After the return of the expedition to Italy an official marine inquiry was held as to the disappearance of the three men. Seven members of the expedition were examined. None except the duke of the Abruzzi thought the men could possibly be alive. Dr. Cavalli, who was with the party when the unfortunate men turned back, testified that the ice was weak in many places and covered with new snow, and he believed the party had fallen in and were drowned. There was no danger, he said, of their losing their course on their way back to the ship, for they knew perfectly the route to steer. A rescue expedition would be impossible in the dark season. Other witnesses expressed the belief that the men had either succumbed to snow storms or fallen through the ice.

The duke of the Abruzzi alone said he believed there was hope that the men had reached one of the supply stations, or, at least, had found refuge on some island where they might be able to live, as Nansen did in the same region, upon the game they killed. He at once hired another vessel, the Stella Polare being too badly used up for further arctic work, and in the spring he will make his way with a new crew across Barents sea to the archipelago where he spent last winter. He will lead a forlorn hope, but he has nobly determined to undergo all the hardships necessary to ascertain whether his lost comrades are still alive in the frightful arctic waste where they were swallowed up.

LITERARY AND HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Raleigh Times.

The State Literary and Historical Association has begun active work.

The Committees and Historial Museum have already accomplished much, and the Committee on Literature and History has planned the work of the year.

The committees as completed were announced today:

The Executive Committee is Justice Walter Clark, chairman; Dr. G. T. Winston, W. J. Peele, Miss Eliza A. Pool, Raleigh; W. L. Poteat, Wake Forest, and J. S. Bassett, Durham.

The Library Committee is composed of G. A. Grimsley, Greensboro, chairman; C. D. McIver, Dred Peacock, Miss Annie Petty, Greensboro; C. F. Tomlinson, Winston; Mrs. John Van Landingham, Charlotte; Mrs. A. G. Carr, Durham; Dr. Henry Louis Smith, Davidson: R. B. Raney, Raleigh; Geo. S. Powell, Asheville; J. B. Carlisle, Wake Forest, T. F. Toon, Raleigh.

The Committee on Historical Museum is composed as follows: Col. F. A. Olds, Raleigh, chairman; Wilson G. Lamb, Williamston; Graham Daves, Newberne; J. B. Hathaway, Edenton; Mrs. R. R. Cotton, Falkland; Mrs. A. B. Andrews, Mrs. Chas. E. Johnson, Raleigh.

The Press Committee.

John Wilber Jenkins, editor of the Raleigh Times, reported that his committee stood ready to push forward the excellent work of the association in every way. He assured the association that the Press was in hearty sympathy with the work.

The committee is composed as follows: John Wilber Jenkins, Editor Raleigh Times, chairman, R. B. Creecy, Editor Economist-Falcon, Elizobeth City; R. F. Beasley, Editor Telegram, Greensboro; Col. W. S. Pearson, Editor Herald, Morganton; Dr. Theo. B. Kingsbury, Editor Messenger, Wilmington; J. H. Myrover; Fayetteville; Josephus Daniels, Editor News and Observer, Raleigh; R. M. Furman, Editor Morning Post, Raleigh; Howard A. Banks, Associate Editor Observer, Charlotte; Col. Joseph E. Robinson, Editor Argus, Goldsboro.

Membership Committee.

The Membership Committee is composed as follows: Alex. J. Field, Raleigh, chairman; H. G. Connor, Wilson; A. H. Eller, Winston; W. S. Primrose, Raleigh; John S. Henderson, Salisbury; J. Bryan Grimes, Raleigh; John S. Cuningham, Cuningham; Junius Davis, Wilmington; with three members to be added. Mr. Field, of the membership committee, reported the present membership at 200, and thought within a year the membership would reach 500.

Committee on History.

The Committee on History and Literature is composed of the following: D. H. Hill, chairman; Howard Rondthaler, Salem; E. P. Moses, Raleigh; T. M. Pittman, Henderson. J. B. Cheshire, Raleigh; W. P. McCorkle, Graham; Edwin Mims, Durham; G. A. Graham, Charlotte; W. L. Poteat, Wake Forest; Henry Jerome Stockard, Raleigh; R. H. Battle, Raleigh; James Sprunt, Wilmington; Mrs. Frances Tiernan, Salisbury.

On behalf of this committee Prof. Hill submitted an admirable report which was adopted and of which the following is a synopsis:

Your committee on Literature and History has decided that the following shall be the objects of its endeavors for this year:

1. To arrange for the prize essay on Vance, as already directed by the association.

2. To suggest to the society or the executive committee that a prize of $50 or $100 be offered for the best short story. This prize not to be given unless the committee of award declares it worthy of the prize.

3. That the committee will at once begin to collect material for a complete bibliography of North Carolina.

4. That the committee will endeavor to appoint interested, active and accurate persons in each county in the older counties of the State to examine old court and church records, and to report the existence of valuable records in each court house or church.

5. To appoint suitable persons all over the State to collect any historical material to be found. The committee will in all cases index and put on permanent record a note as to where discovered material may be found, and where practical, either turn such documents over to the Museum Committee or get copies.

6. The committee will try each year send out printed program sheets for observance of North Carolina day in the public schools. A sheet will be sent to every public school in the State if the society can stand the expense.

7. To encourage formation of literary clubs in as many towns as possible.

The association unanimously adopted a resolution to offer a price of $100 for the best short life of Vance. The conditions will be made known later.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 22

Senator Simmons! That he may prove more than worthy of the great trust and expectations the people of North Carolina have imposed in him is our hope.

THE SHERIFF ON FIFTH AVENUE.

It will be remembered that our friend, Miss Anna Gould, married a Juke, the high spirited Count Boni Castellane, who has since been industriously spending his wife's money and getting all he could on credit at the same time. At last he got so bad that Miss Anna's big brother had to go over to Paree and take charge of the remainder of his sister's estate. When he became trustee he made an arrangement by which so much of the family's income should be applied yearly to the liquidation of the Juke's debts. But there was a vulgar tradesman in Lunnon who was not satisfied with the arrangement. His unreasonable position of dissatisfaction arose from the fact that no arrangement had been made to pay him a large number of thousands which Boni owed him for bric-a-brac (these vulgar Lunnon tradesmen were always so upstartish). This one set in to law 'em, and law 'em he did. In the New York Sun we find:

Sheriff Grell has been making a search throughout the county for several days for the Count and Countess de Castellane. It was not his business to give any credence to the published statements that they are in Paris and have been for several months. What he had to do was to find them in this country and not let it leak out that he was on their trail on pain of answering in damages if they should flee the jurisdiction, or to let the court know why he had not found them. On an affidavit showing that the sheriff had made a thorough search Justice Fitzgerald in the Supreme court yesterday ordered that the Count and Countess be served with summons by publication in the action brought in behalf of Asher Werthemeir, the London bric-a-brac dealer, to have his claim paid from the income of the Countess from her father's estate. * * * The sheriff had accurate descriptions of the Count and Countess on which the law required him to make the hunt. The affidavit simply tells the places the sheriff visited, but the details of the search were reported to counsel for the creditor. The places he went to included the office of George Gould, the Hotel Martin on University place, the Waldorf-Astoria, the Holland House, the home of Miss Helen Gould in Fifth avenue and the Hotel Savoy.

Think what a figure a sheriff must have cut tripping around the houses on Fifth avenue with a photograph of the Juke in his pocket, or in the Waldorf-Astoria yanking up the aleet and comparing them with his photograph to see if they corresponded to it. We do not take it that the Juke knows anything about this presuming American Sheriff being on his track. We have come to this conclusion from recollecting what the Juke's pa said when Brother George took hold of things. That old parasite said with true French indignation that "Boni's high spirit will chafe under this insult." So we know that if Boni had any idea this sheriff was on his track, in a fit of his high spirits, he'd go for the villian and challenge him. We dread to see Boni learn about it. Something will be to pay when he does.

We had supposed that if any sovereign had been free from the hatred of the madmen who murder in liberty's name, it was she whose life has just ebbed away. But not so. From the chronological table published elsewhere it will be seen that there have been several attempts to murder her

Some people in the House today drew up to the same microscopic proportions which Senator Gudger assumed last Saturday in voting against the resolution asking Dr. Curry to address the Legislature.

Trains continue to be loaded with people bound to the sanitarium of Father Kruger, ten miles west of this town. The records of the institution show that over 6,000 were treated by the priest-physician in the past year. There are many tales of wonderful cures effected. Some are of the opinion that the reverend father is possessessed of miraculous powers in the curing of disease.

His fame has spread over the surrounding states and special cars have been chartered and loaded with the ailing of whole communities, hundreds of miles away, and in other states, to receive treatment at the Mecca of health on the praries of Miner county. Father Kruger has a powerful X-ray machine and all comers are subjected to its rays.

Many of the father's fellow priests have denounced him as a quack and fraud, and he has been twice called to Rome at their instigation, but it is understood that the Vatican has on both occasions rendered a decision in his favor. The father does not claim mraculous powers, but only a knowledge of medicine.

ONCE A ROUGH TOWN.

Ava, Ill., Was at One Time Overrun by Desperadoes.

Some Memorable Instances of Their Hardihood—One of Their Number Who Was Particularly Bad.

In the early 70's, when the now flourishing town of Ava was known by the name of "Headquarters," it was overrun with rough characters and desperadoes of all descriptions. The place soon acquired such a bad reputation that strangers were afraid to visit it. It was at this time, says a special correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean, that the Callahan clan was in the height of its power. This clan was an organized band of outlaws, and its members raided stores, looted residences, made counterfeit money and stole horses. In speaking of the old Headquarters days, one of Ava's pioneer citizens the other day told of some of his experiences.

"I was at work on a new building," said the old citizen, "when the sheriff requested me to go with him to arrest Bill Kollings, a notorious robber. He had another picked man, and we set out. The man we were to arrest, or kill if necessary, had been located in a small log cabin among the hills a mile south of town. The country was then in timber and was rough and unbroken. We made our plans as we rode along, and we were determined to make the arrest or die in trying it. We knew the character of the man we were after, and we were prepared for business.

"Arriving near the cabin, we dismounted and crept up as noiselessly as we could. The shanty was surrounded by a stone wall about four feet high. When we had almost reached the place the outlaw's dog barked, and the next thing that happened the sheriff's hat was knocked off by a rifle ball, which also took a little of his hair. We discovered that the robber was fortified behind the stone wall, and it was quite evident that we were in for a siege, so we stationed ourselves behind some trees and fired a volley at the desperado. We knew we could not hit him, but we wanted to make him thoroughly understand that we were not going to be driven away empty handed. The fellow shot at us every time he got a chance, and we returned his shots.

"After fighting Indian fashion for quite awhile, the sheriff said that something must be done, as his time was valuable. He suggested that we make a charge on the fortification of the enemy. First he tied his handkerchief to a stick and waved it from behind a tree.

"'What do you want, Mr. Sheriff?' sang out Bill, the bandit.

"'I want you to surrender,' said the sheriff.

"'I ain't going to do it,' replied our man, ''cause I ain't done anything to be arrested for.'

The sheriff then gave the word, and away we started. Our sudden move seemed to have caught the robber off his guard, and we were right up to him before he tried to shoot. When we reached him he was chewing tobacco the fastest I ever did see a man chew. He reminded me of a sheep eating green clover. But he was cool and collected, just the same. Although we had him covered with our guns, he jerked his big Colt's revolver from his belt and fired point blank at the sheriff. The ball passed through the sheriff's arm, making a painful flesh wound. The other deputy and myself then jumped on the man and succeeded in putting the irons on him, but he made an ugly fight, and it was all we could do to handle him. He was a powerful man, over six feet in height, and all muscle.

"We then dressed the sheriff's injuries as best we could and started back to town with our prisoner. We got along without any trouble. Shortly afterward we caught Kollings' brother, but that's another story."

The Kollings boys and ten other men were sent to prison and served 15 years each. At one time the clan had a membership of 26, but there were only ten or 12 who did the robbing. The others assisted in making the plans and took charge of the stolen goods.

A New Cure.

In the vicinity of Odessa are what are called "limans"—vast sheets of water, which were originally connected with the sea, but through gradual sifting up of sand have been isolated and are now extensive salt-water lakes. By means of evaporation the waters in these lakes have become concentrated, and have been proved to be of so much medicinal value that the "liman cure," as it is called, is rapidly growing into popular favor.—Little Chronicle.

Gambling for a Pastor.

A novel way of choosing a pastor was recently adopted by the Mennonites at Groffsdale, Pa. There were ten candidates and ten Bibles were placed on a table before them. In one was a slip of paper, and the candidate who chose this Bible became the pastor.

GREAT DIAMOND FINISHED.

One of the Greatest Kimberley Gems Has Been Cut and Sold in This Country.

For six days a week since June, a workman had been engaged in cutting and polishing the largest diamond ever brought to this country. One day lately it was finished, says a New York exchange. The final bit of polishing was done in a workshop at No. 142 West Fourteenth street, and the diamond was ready for the market. Like all large diamonds, this one has a name. It is called the Ernestine, and as such is destined to become famous.

The Ernestine has a history. In the days when Baden-Powell and his small band of men were besieged by the Boers in Kimberley, the Kaffirs were kept busy in the mines. In what might be termed the height of the siege the big diamond was found. For a day work was suspended, and the soldiers left the trenches to get a look at the great stone in the rough.

When the siege was raised the first shipment from the mines was the stone found while the siege was going on. It was taken to London, and there attracted the attention of an American. Others wished it, but the buyer of uncut stones from this country said nothing was too good for America, and the stone was sold to him. It generally was supposed that the cutting of the great gem would be intrusted to some European firm, but the purchaser preferred to have it done under his own supervision in his own shop.

In the rough the stone weighed 326 karats. The cutting has reduced this, but it was estimated that the Ernestine when finished would be worth more than $40,000.

The owner said the other day that the diamond had been sold and had left his hands. The name of the purchaser he refused to reveal, but intimated that it would be made public in a short time. It is understood that a dealer in stones has purchased it, and that the final owner will be a woman of wealth, who has been after the Ernestine ever since it was brought to this country.

ACCOMMODATING HUSBAND.

His Only Trouble Was That He Was Just a Little Bit Absent-Minded.

"Paul," said Mrs. Pondermore, as they rose from dinner, breaking the silence that had prevailed throughout the meal, says the Smart Set, "do you know that we were married just five years ago to-day?"

"If I'd been there it would never have happened," observed Mr. Pondermore, who is rather absent-minded, pursuing his train of thought aloud. "Er—excuse me, my dear, you were saying—?"

"That this is the fifth anniversary of our wedding," replied Mrs. Pondermore, who is used to her husband's thinking out loud; "and it has set me to contrasting the two times. Paul, do you know that you never kiss me mornings and evenings as you used to?"

"Er—certainly not. I don't think it a sensible move at all; it might put us in a very ridiculous light if it became public," muttered Mr. Pondermore. "I beg your pardon, my dear, I'm afraid I was slightly inattentive—that U. B. D. and D. deal is worrying me somewhat—what was it you said?"

"That you neglected to kiss me as you used to when we were first married," said Mrs. Pondermore, patiently. "I know it isn't because you don't love me any more, Paul, but—but don't you think you could remember to?" she asked, wistfully.

Mr. Pondermore contracted his brows tightly in an honest effort to corral his errant thoughts and fix them upon what his wife was saying.

"Er—yes, my dear," he said; "what is it I have neglected?"

"You don't kiss me as often as you used to, Paul," repeated his wife, softly.

"Don't I, my darling?" cried Mr. Pondermore, all contrition. "It's the wretched business that engrosses me so; but if you'll forgive me, sweetest, I'll never forget it again. Never. Er—that is," he added, the absent look creeping back into his eyes, "just make a note of it, and I'll have one of the clerks attend to it the first thing in the morning."

Wonderful Telegraphy.

Two Hungarians, Messrs. Pollak and Virag, who some little while ago discovered a system of very rapid telegraphy, are now said to have invented a system by which 60,000 words per hour can be transmitted and, what is more wonderful, printed in ordinary characters on a slip of sensitized paper at the receiving end. The slip comes out of the receiving instrument ready to be gummed on to a form for delivery.—N. Y. Sun.

DOBLEY'S KILLING PACE

Revealed When His Wife Used Cook-book Prescriptions.

"I DON'T know why it is, said Mr. Dobley, as he pushed away his untasted breakfast, "but I feel a presentiment that I am going to be ill."

"You never looked better in your life," said Mrs. Dobley. "Don't give in to any such idea. It's simply nervousness."

"That's it," said Dobley. "My nerves are running away with me. They are at a tension which threatens a sudden collapse. I start at the least sound. I wake with the bells ringing in my ears and feel as though a vise were gripping my head. It's been that way now for three days."

"It's those late suppers of yours," said Mrs. Dobley. "You would require the digestion of an ostrich to consume such combinations as you have been addicted to of late."

"Nonsense, Mrs. Dobley; my symptoms have nothing about them which indicates that the trouble is a simple one, which might be removed by bicarbonate of soda and seltzer. It's located here, Mrs Dobley." Dobley tapped his brow mysteriously.

"Perhaps a headache?" suggested Mrs. Dobley.

"No; it's the rush of modern life," said Dobley. "It's the pace at which people must live nowadays. We're all in a race—trying to see which of us can push on fastest to the grave!"

"Dear me!" said Mrs. Dobley. "I felt sure that the fricasseed crab meat in a chafing dish and the Welsh rabbit you had last night would affect your liver, and now I'm sure of it. Either one alone is bad enough, but when you combine the two—it is simply dreadful!"

"It is not the liver, Mrs. Dobley, it is the brain. I have a confused sensation as though the optic nerve had gotten tangled with the spinal cord. Then there is a singing in the ears with a tingling feeling in the temples, and shooting pains in the back of the neck."

"They have an excellent Household Medical Guide in the back of this," she said, as she skimmed over the leaves.

"Have you had dizzy spells and hallucinations, with loss of appetite and a distaste for exertion?" she asked, reading from one of the pages.

"Exactly," said Dobley. "I feel as though my head weighed a ton, and when I attempt to walk the effort of placing one foot before the other seems to completely exhaust my vitality. The very thought of taking another step is weakening."

"How about chills with sudden flushes of heat, sallow complexion and a yellowish tinge to the whites of the eyes?" asked Mrs. Dobley, anxiously.

"All of those," said Dobley. "I tell you, Mrs. Dobley, I am threatened with a serious collapse. I have been working too hard."

"You have the grip," said Mrs. Dobley, firmly, closing the book, "and you must not think of going downtown today. Simply telephone to the office that you are ill, and take a day of quiet rest at home. I will fix up some remedies that will break up your cold, for really grip is only an exaggerated cold. And the rest will do you good."

"I haven't taken a day's holiday in years," said Dobley. "I don't think it would agree with me to stay home. I'd fancy I heard the ticker calling me or imagine the office was on fire, or something."

"Now, you go upstairs and get into a smoking jacket and slippers, and, first of all, I will fix up something that you can eat. I will prepare it myself!" said Mrs. Dobley, who had little or no opportunity to put her nursing abilities in evidence owing to her husband's continual good health. She acted as though it were going to be a genuine pleasure to have an invalid on her hands for a day.

An hour later Dobley was wrapped in an eiderdown quilt, with a flaxseed poultice on his chest and a wet towel about his head. Mrs. Dobley said she had taken his temperature and declared that it was more than a hundred, so she decided that it was better for the invalid not to eat anything.

So a very tempting broiled chicken with currant jelly, buttered toast and tea was taken downstairs before Dobley's eyes, although he explained that he had had the first symptoms of real appetite that he had experienced for three days. Then Mrs. Dobley made him take a dose of some disagreeable mixture and put a piece of ice on his head. Dobley had just become eagerly interested in a new novel when she took it away and said that it would only upset his nerves to read it, and she even removed the newspapers and read him one of Mrs. Heman's poems.

"I am bound that you'll have one day of perfect rest, John," she said. "You have positively alarmed me as to the condition of your health."

"Already I feel much better," said Dobley. "I suppose my state of nervousness made me exaggerate the symptoms. Do you know, my dear, I think I should enjoy some toast and tea—and chicken. And perhaps a small piece of steak, also. I don't know whether it is the poultice or the ice on my head, but my appetite has returned."

"But the book says: 'On no account allow the patient to eat while the fever rages.' I might fetch you some milk and lime water if you think you could stand it."

"I have no yearning for it," said Dobley, "and my fever has subsided. I have an idea that I shall bring all my strength of will to my aid and go down to the office after all. It makes me feel foolish to sit here done up in this way."

"But your nerves have quieted down—don't you see what a different person you are to the Mr. Dobley who complained at the breakfast table this morning? How is the singing in your ears?"

"Never a song," said Dobley. "Nothing disturbs the quiet but the dull drip of the ice upon my collar. How long do I have to balance this berg on my head? By the way, Mrs. Dobley, I feel sufficiently frapped now, for my own part. But I don't want to interfere with the original recipe. You are sure you have not gotten me mixed up with a dessert?"

"The ice must be renewed at frequent intervals," said Mrs. Dobley. "It's the greatest thing in the world for the nerves. I have sent out to get an extra supply."

"And the embalming process that is at present going on over my wishbone?" asked Dobley. "Is there any special time at which it may be removed, or is it one of those perpetual blooms that become part of one's very existence? The freezing of the head and the boiling of the chest simultaneously is a great idea for taking the mind off business troubles. It is impossible for one to worry about the price of gas stock with these two restoratives in operation."

"That's it," said Mrs. Dobley. "It's the counter-irritant that cures. I'll venture to say that you have no symptoms of tired feeling at present. You said this morning that you couldn't put one foot before the other."

"I feel now," said Dobley, "that if I could shed these various glaciers and volcanoes that you have surrounded me with I could sprint around a cinder path in time to music. About this time, as a rule, I am going out to luncheon when I am downtown. What a terrible thing it would be to be condemned to stay at home doing nothing every day! It would drive me crazy in about 48 hours."

"But, like all New Yorkers, you are fond of talking about the nervous strain caused by the rush we live in, the noise, the elevated cars and all that, when in reality you couldn't live in any other atmosphere or environment!"

"They say," said Dobley, shifting the ice so that it would melt equally over both sides of his neck, "they say there are microbes in the New York air that are different from the germs that exist in the atmosphere of other cities. I suppose we get accustomed to absorbing these particular ones, and we get to like them. If a New Yorker found himself in a quiet country place with no prospect of getting back to Broadway and the Bowery he would think the roar of the elevated the sweetest music in the world!"

"But he would begin talking about the terrible strain he lived under just as soon as he got back to town."

"It's artificial, but then we are fond of gilding and show in every department. Take our restaurants—and, talking about restaurants, Mrs. Dobley, I am of the opinion that I should feel much better if I were allowed the excitement of a few lamb chops just at this moment. I feel a peculiar gnawing—"

"I think you'd better have a fresh poultice," said Mrs. Dobley. "You lose the effects of those poultices unless they are changed quite often."

"I won't worry if I lose the effect," said Mr. Dobley. "There is something about a poultice that seems somehow humiliating to me. Modern medical authorities laugh at poultices. They say never put a poultice on anything but a barn door—but your little book, 'Helpful Hints for the Kitchen,' advocates them strongly, I see."

"There is nothing like a poultice," said Mrs. Dobley.

"No," replied her husband, sadly, "it occupies a niche all by itself; it's a solitaire in the scheme of life. It's a clammy, clinging amalgamation of exclusiveness."

"I can see that you feel better already," said Mrs. Dobley. "I can always tell when you begin joking that you are really happy."

"Happiness is a big word," said Dobley, adjusting the drip to a point just above his left ear. "I've been happier than I am at this moment, and yet I have been more unhappy! There is a certain repose about the feeling that a piece of ice on the head gives one. Then, the mere fact of having had nothing to eat for a number of hours has a chastening influence that cannot be denied."

"Do you really think you could stand some breakfast?" asked Mrs. Dobley. "I am a little bit afraid to go contrary to the directions."

"Mrs. Dobley," said that lady's husband, with dignity, "I absolutely refuse to be confused with the methods for cooking which are contained in that useful volume you hold. It may be all right regarding things that are to be set in a cool place and fanned until frozen, and it also gives you thorough and efficient modes for driving out red ants, but I am prepared to have some breakfast, and I would like the customary meal of steak, chops and soft-boiled eggs that are served previous to executions of death sentences."

"I don't believe that you are ill at all," said Mrs. Dobley.

"I merely complained of nervousness," said Dobley, "and I must admit that this quiet, restful morning, in conjunction with the somewhat rigid rules prescribed in the 'Kitchen Hints' has completely restored me to my normal state of health. I am now prepared to shed my various wraps, pillows, poultices and glaciers, to have breakfast and to proceed to my daily toil."

"Oh, you can't go now!" said Mrs. Dobley. "I telephoned them that you were very ill. Suppose we go to a matinee?"

"Which is a thought born of an intelligence of marked superiority," said Dobley. "Let us get back to our usual gait—the pace may be killing—but we can't get along without our microbes."—N. Y. Sun.

A new use for bagpipes has been found by a Scottish Highlander who owns a sheep farm in a mountainous district of California, and is in the habit almost daily of playing his pipes all over the ground. The skirling has had the happy effect of scaring eagles out of the locality, in which birds of prey had formerly done considerable damage by carrying off lambs, and had even attacked grown sheep.

C. E. HOLTON
HOWARD GARDNER

VICE PRESIDENT SENT UP A TREE.

Meeker, Col., Dispatch, 18th.

Col. Roosevelt's chair was vacant last night when the hunters at the Keystone ranch gathered for supper. No anxiety was felt at first, as he had told the others when he left the cabin for a solitary stroll just before dusk not to wait for him in case he was not back by suppertime. But, at 9 o'clock, Col. Roosevelt had not returned, and his friends became alarmed. At 10 they were convinced that he was the victim of some accident, and men and dogs started to find him. Possibly, his friends thought, he had fallen while climbing the wall of a canon and was so injured he could not walk. Perhaps he had another encounter with a grizzly, and had been less fortunate than before. It was even suggested that he had been kidnapped by a belated party of Utes who have been killing game in Colorado.

When he left the cabin, Col. Roosevelt intended to get a few shots at some of the numberless little wolves after which Coyote Basin is named. They are exceedingly fleet and cannot be run down in a broken country, so he hunted on foot and without the dogs, taking his chances for coming upon them by stealth.

But the coyotes were wary, and he did not get a shot till in the gathering darkness he saw the shaggy form of a gray wolf outlined against the sky on a ridge fully 300 yards away. It was too dark for accurate aim, but a bullet from Col. Roosevelt's rifle wounded the beast and sent him limping and yelling over the brow of the hill. Col. Roosevelt followed on the run. He found the tracks of the animal, showing that its leg had been broken. A light snow had fallen the night before, and the bloodstained footprints were easily traced. The hunter was already far from home and in the excitement of the chase had lost his direction.

However, he had no thought of danger until he noticed that the yelping of the wounded wolf was answered by others. These gray wolves are twice as large as the coyote, and dangerous when in numbers. Col. Roosevelt kept away from the thickets and brought down several of the brutes when they came too near. Finally it became too dark for anything but hap-hazard shooting, and as the country seemed alive with wolves he climbed a tree. In doing so he lost his cartridge belt. There the party found him after he had been a prisoner for four hours. Under the tree were half dozen wolves that he had killed with his revolvers. The others were soon scattered by the dogs.

Little Girl Burned to Death.

Winston Journal, 18th.

Yesterday afternoon Bessie Libass, dughter of Mr. and Mrs. Libass, who live on South Side, was burned to death.

She was standing near an open fire place endeavoring to take something from a stew pan when her dress caught fire and before the flames could be extinguished was burned so severely that death ensued within three hours.

Her face and body were terribly burned and blistered. At the time of the accident she was in the house alone but her screams attracted those outside who came, but too late to save her life. All her clothes were burned off. She caught fire about 2 o'clock and died about 5 p. m. Dr. Frank Shaffner attended her and rendered all the medical aid possible but it was of no avail. Her age was 5 years.

The funeral service took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The interment was in the Liberty cemetery.

Largest Warehouse in the South.

Winston Journal.

H. J. Blauvelt returned last night from Danville where he awarded the contract to R. B. Graham to build the new warehouse for Acree Bros. Mr. Blauvelt drew the plans for this warehouse, which will be the largest in the South, some weeks past. He says work will begin at once on its construction.

RHEUMATISM—CATARRH—DISEASES CURED BY B. B. B.

It is the deep-seated, obstinate cases of catarrh and rheumatism that B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) cures. It matters not what other treatments, doctors, sprays, liniments, medicated air blood purifiers, have failed to do, B. B. B. always promptly reaches the real cause and roots out and drives from the bones, joints, mucuous membrane, and entire system the specific poison in the blood that causes rheumatism and catarrh. B. B. B. is the only remedy strong enough to do this and cure ond so there can never be a return to the symptoms. Don't give up hope, but try B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) or 3 Bs.

For sale by druggists and Howard Gardner, in Greensboro, at $1 per large bottle, or 6 large bottles (full treatment) $5. To prove our faith in B. B. B. we will send a trial bottle free to sufferers, so they may test the remedy at our expense. Address Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga.

PREVENTED A TRAGEDY.

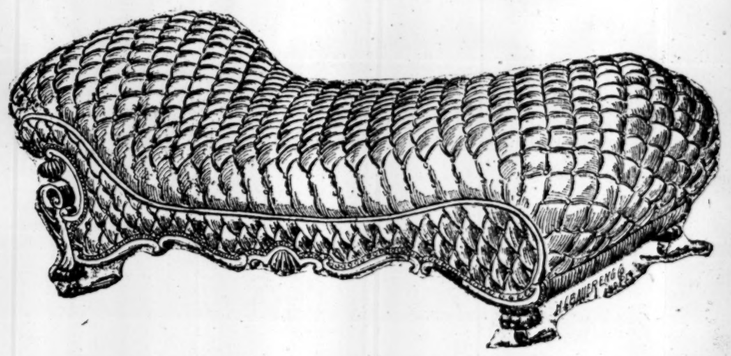
Timely information given Mrs. George Long, of New Straitsville, O., prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had kept her awake every night. She tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle cured her, and she writes this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the matchless merit of this grand remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at C. E. Holton's drug store.

This season there is a large death rate among children from croup and lung troubles. Prompt action will save the little ones from these terrible diseases. We know of nothing so certain to give instant relief as One Minute Cough Cure. It can also be relied upon in grippe and all throat and lung troubles of adults. Pleasant to take. Howard Gardner.

STORY OF A SLAVE.

To be bound hand and foot for yeasr by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. Geo. D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says "My wife has been been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle-working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, rundown people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by C. E. Holton, druggist.

When threatened by pneumonia or any other lung trouble, prompt relief is necessary, as it is dangerous to delay. We would suggest that One Minute Cough Cure be taken as soon as indications of having taken cold are noticed. It cures quickly and its early use prevents consumption. Howard Gardner.



People Looking For Bargains

Will make a great mistake if they fail to see the largest and finest line of Artistic Furniture ever shown on this market. Now is the time to save money while the reduction sale is on. I am offering unparalelled bargains through the entire stock. Don't miss this rare opportunity.

C. O. FORBIS

On account of the serious illness of Mr. Scott we will not have the demonstrations of Hecker's Buckwheat, etc., advertised to be given by Mrs. Reese in our store this week. Instead, Mrs. Reese will be found at the store of our friends, Messrs. W. L. Wharton & Co. Would be glad if you would call there aud get a free sample and learn something about good things to eat.

Yours truly,

J. W. Scott & Co

Merritt, Brower & Company

The Place--The Bargains.

Johnson & Dorsett's of course is the place. They are selling out for the purpose of going out of business. It is a genuine sale and they do just as they promise. They do not expect to begin business again, and they are not trying to clean out old stock to make room for new.

The bargains? Oh, they are there, plenty of them. If you haven't been to see, but of course you have, everybody is going, ask your neighbor about them. They are too many to be enumerated here. Come and look over them. There is no doubt about your being well pleased and paid for your trouble.

MOTHER AND CHILD

Let the mother take Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil for the two; it is almost never superfluous.

One can eat for two; but nourishing two is a different thing; it implies a degree of interior strength not often found in woman of either extreme.

Luxurious people are not very strong by habit, and overworked people are weak from exhaustion in some of their functions. Between the two is the happy mean; but how many women have plenty of life for two?

The emulsion is almost never superfluons.

We'll send you a little to try if you like.
